Subject: Protection of the identity of certain intelligence personnel on detail to the White House
To : NL, NN

The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) has requested that any information which would identify a person working on the White House or National Security Council staffs with the CIA be withheld from release. The reason for this is that the person may be assigned under cover of another agency or may at some later date be assigned to intelligence work abroad. Disclosure of that person's association with the intelligence agency could impede the effectiveness of the individual in such assignments or place the person in jeopardy. While this request was initiated by the CIA with regard to its personnel, the same restrictions on release of such information applies to National Security Agency (NSA) personnel as well. Clerical and technical support staff members of these agencies are included as well as analysts, specialists, and managers. Excepted only are individuals identified in The United States Government Manual as officials of those intelligence agencies.

Documents containing such information marked as security classified information should remain classified until reviewed by agency classification specialists. Documents in Presidential libraries not so marked should be withheld and be submitted for a classification determination upon request for a researcher. Record items containing such information and not marked as classified should be withdrawn and submitted to CIA or NSA reviewers for a classification determination or a determination as to whether such items should be withheld under NARS General Restriction No. 2 (Information Exempt from Disclosure by Statute; cf., 50 USC 403g, Sec. 6 and 50 USC 402 note).
